Out Of The Dark

The City of Princeton certainly is in need of more street lights and it is the desire of The Leader that one or more of our civic minded organizations pitch in and help the city fathers with a street lighting project.

The City does not have the funds to install all the lights needed here but something should be done soon to illuminate the many dark places within the city limits.

Nothing so impresses a visitor driving through a town at night more than brightly lighted streets. They decide immediately that they have struck a wide-awake town, and often decide to stop and spend the night.

The main consideration, however, is that we do have several dark spots along our streets that are dangerous. A lighting up project is a progressive step that would be in line with the continued growth of this community.

State's Money Troubles

The state of Kentucky faces the difficulty of a decline of almost 8 per cent in the anticipated revenue collections for this year and an actual decrease over last year of 3.5 per cent in collections. This is due to a number of causes but the principal one is that the distilled spirits tax, largely from the manufacture of whiskey, slumped from $1,130,013.38 to $406,136.47 in the two periods. Corporation income taxes, too, are off nearly a million dollars.

The slump in collections from the distilled spirits tax is due more than anything else to high federal taxes against which a protest was made by Kentucky representatives and state officials in Washington before the Senate Finance Committee. Yet the tax was increased.

Gov. Lawrence Wetherby, therefore, has followed a wise course in immediately calling together officials in the state administration to develop a definite program to be followed in the emergency. He has announced this program which is to freeze expenditures at their present rate and to stop further increases in personnel or in programs.

The existing contracts, routine raises for employees and money allocations already made will not be affected, he says. This, it is hoped, will prevent reductions where appropriations already have been authorized and the money for such purposes allocated.

Unless there is a recovery of taxes from both of these and from other sources the next regular session of the Kentucky General Assembly will face a most serious problem. The membership of this legislature, however, will not be elected until next year. Between now and then there is no way to predict definitely what the situation will be. It can only be hoped that it will improve and that tax collections from present sources will increase because, while it is easy enough to suggest tax measures it is almost impossible to enact them. —(The Lexington Herald)

Farm And Home Invaded

The technique of the industrial efficiency experts whose time-and-motion studies were designed to detect any wasted effort in assembly line production has now been turned on the housewife and the farmer.

For instance, the University of Vermont Agricultural experiment station discovered that by conventional methods the average housewife may take a walk of up to 262 feet in making a standard-size double bed! Their staff offers a "once-around-the-bed" routine which cuts the walk down to 23 feet, and reduces the time, which may be as much as six-and-one-half minutes by the old method, to as little as two-and-three-quarter minutes.

Equally as surprising are the results of a University of Kentucky experiment which was aimed at cutting down wasted motion in dairy chores. "Walking may be reduced from 45 miles a cow yearly to slightly more than 10 miles a cow yearly," the U. K. Experiment Station reported. By replanning the barn and eliminating useless motions, it was found that the work in a 17-cow herd could be reduced to less than 55 man-hours per cow a year. An earlier study showed that an average of 120 man-hours were required.

No doubt similar studies followed by time-cutting recommendations, have been made of other farm, office and shop routines.

You, first reaction, as was ours, probably was to laugh them off as too trivial to demand any attention. But, on second thought, if you could make the same number of beds, milk the same number of cows, stamp as many envelopes or print as many newspapers in less than half the time and be less fatigued—well, maybe it's worth a try on some of those chores. —(The Shelby News)

A Public Service

The soft drink manufacturers could render a fine public service if they would put a little sticker on the bottles reading "something like this: 'Don't throw this bottle on the highway.'"

Anyone who drives the highways today has seen the roadside littered with bottles, many of them broken. Of course, it is against the law in most States, including Kentucky, to throw out bottles and refuse, but it is hardly possible for a law enforcement officer to travel behind each car.

A friendly educational program by manufacturers would encourage customers to take empty bottles home to the garbage can or some other suitable disposal place, thus preventing unsightliness on the roadsides and broken bottles from cutting up tires or causing accidents. —(The Kentucky Standard)

20 More Years

The average life span in the United States has increased to a record high of 68 years, according to vital statistics of the public health service. This is a gain of 20 years over normal life expectancy in 1900 and a triumph for medical science. We know more about dietetics, vitamins and miracle drugs than was dreamed of a half century ago. We are the world's best fed population. Now if only we knew a little better how to use those extra 20 years than they did back in 1900! —(St. Louis Globe Democrat)

Workers' Paradise

If you are 10 minutes late getting on the job—
If you leave the job 10 minutes early—
If you take 15 minutes too long for lunch—
Each one of these counts as a lost day against you.

When you have missed four such days, your factory supervisor can and will take you into court. The court can then cut your wages anywhere from 10 to 25 per cent. If you won't go back on the job, you may be thrown into prison for a six-month stretch.

This is a new law—in Communist controlled Poland. They call it "the Socialist discipline of work." And the Reds call Poland a "workers' paradise!"

Little Chips

By J. S. H.

Probably not one Kentuckian in 1,000 knows how the name of our state originated. Jay Jay in a column called "Four Bits" in The Lexington Herald tells about it this way: When Kentucky county, Virginia, in 1780 was divided into three counties, none of the three retained the name, but all three were given new names, Fayette, Jefferson and Lincoln. Thus there was no place legally named Kentucky. That condition continued for three years. In 1783 Virginia created a judicial district embracing the same territory as the old Kentucky county and named it the District of Kentucky. In that form the name survived for nine years; then, it became the name of a new state.

Noble Gregory is no more embarrassed than I am over the November election returns for this county in the representative race as published by The Leader and most other papers in the state. W. Mallam Lake was reported to have carried Caldwell by 86 votes, but the official returns show that Gregory actually carried the county by 73 votes. Somebody must have been half asleep election night.

Santa Claus Day, Saturday, will be one of the biggest thrills most children of this community will get this Christmas season. And you can bet your bottom dollar that hundreds of mothers and dads will line up with Johnny or Mary to get a close view of the good old man from way up north.

Kentucky Folklore

"Layers Of Paint"

By Gordon Wilson, Ph. D.
(Western State College)

My house, as is probably appropriate, is an old one, built back in the days of cut nails and yellow poplar. In fact, all the old part of it, from sills to rafters, is yellow poplar, probably sawed right here in Warren county. Even the elaborately carved door facings are of the same wood, not something imported from the West Coast.

When this house was built, the West Coast was, figuratively if not actually, much farther away; and there was still a lot of good timber around here. Yellow poplar is not especially to the taste of termites; hence, my timbers still preserve their ancient form and soundness. As the years have come and gone, I have made or had made some additions to the house, so that it is not entirely what it used to be, though it preserves its front with no visible change. Because of recent layers of paint over much of it, what it used to be in color is now erased; white paint and green shutter make it look as if it had always been just as it is now in its complexion. But that is not true.

This summer, when the temperature was at its height, I took a blow torch and removed some badly cracked paint on the walls of the front porch. Before I had worked at this more than a few minutes, I began to realize how the layers of paint had chronicled a long lifetime for the house and its present and former occupants. Down through the outside five or six or maybe more layers I recognized the paint that I had put on in the thirty-four years that I have lived here. Each one brought back the year and some of the events that were going on when the paint was spread.

This yellowish layer, away down in the thickness of the thickness of the paint, was the first one I put on, away back in 1920. But there were several other below that one, layers that meant nothing to me personally, as they were the work of some former owner or someone whom he employed to paint the house. One of those layers was very tell-tale; I had great difficulty in getting it removed, even with my blow torch. Finally I came down to the yellow poplar weatherboarding and was astounded at its soundness and beauty. What were eighty or ninety years of weatherboarding that had been encased in these numerous layers of paint? After the last of the breaks had been remedied, I gave the newly-uncovered wood a priming coat and then covered the planks up again with gleaming white, hoping that this treatment will keep them as sound as the numerous layers have kept them for the better part of a century.

Quite naturally, as a folklorist, I drew an analogy between this unconscious piling up of paint and the accumulation of human customs. Down under some of the outside white or other modern paint still repose in untouched state the paints or customs of other times, buried so deeply that they are not known to exist until some break occurs that cuts down through all that had covered them so long. Like the tree layers of growth, the whole history of the race is wrapped up in these hidden customs. If some calamity were to occur, somewhat comparable to burning off the outside layers, there is no telling what we might find hidden within our civilization, both good and bad. In many a building in Europe later generations had grown tired of some famous painting on the wall or some ornate carving on woodwork and had painted or covered them over with some more modern paint or a picture. Art connoisseurs found some uncovered bits and gradually removed the later layers, often finding work of great importance unthought of below.

I am often reminded of an acquaintance of mine who certainly took into his own hands the making of priceless antiques into modern furniture. He and his wife had been left as caretakers of the house of a famous German professor in one of the big universities. The house was almost a treasure house of furniture that the family had accumulated through forty years of travel abroad.

When the caretaker's baby was born, a dusty old cradle was found in the attic; it was a matter of a few hours to saw off the rockers, making a beautiful baby bed, for cradles were no longer fashionable. Then a coat or two of modern paint made the old cradle bright and shiny. When the professor and his family returned from their years abroad, the rosewood cradle was this botched-up baby bed, and the rockers had been fed to the furnace. I have never known what was done with what was left. Maybe that baby bed is still reposing in its layers of paint; maybe it has been redone and refitted with rockers for the second and the third generation.

Washington Letter

(By Jane Eads)

Washington — Housewives the nation over share a common worry—how to divide and stretch their budgets to house, feed, clothe and educate their families and give them a feeling of security. They all want to improve their homes, are all interested in home decoration and all want washing machines.

This was clear in interviews I had with home management specialists from different parts of the country meeting in Washington recently to discuss the family living outlook for 1953.

Miss Barbara Higgins, state home demonstration agent-at-large of the University of Massachusetts, told me women in her state are especially interested in money-management programs. They want a higher standard of living and want to buy things but are stymied by high prices.

"Women are becoming more business-conscious and are now bearing much more financial responsibility in the home," she said. "They are interested in programs that tell them how to buy, build and improve a home. They are eager for help in planning insurance and savings programs, how to plan a will, and ways of protecting families against emergencies, death, hospitalization, accidents."

Marybeth Minden, home management specialist at Oregon State College, says women are interested in methods of simplifying the work in the home and how to make money go further. "They were worried about inflation, but in the last few months, they seem to be adjusting themselves and learning to live with it," she told me. "As prices kept climbing, they began to show more interest in home baking and in canning and preserving food, with a definite trend toward the use of home freezers and community locker plants."

Willie Via Dowdy, home improvement specialist with the Georgia agricultural extension service 33 years, says every Georgia housewife wants a washing machine after she gets lights and water in her home.

Miss Dowdy, who says she knows "every pig track in the state," says the Georgia housewife is equally interested in landscaping her yard and streamlining her kitchen. Some 15,000 homemakers have been helped to improve their kitchens over the past 10 years, she said, with a power company co-operating in the extension service program.

Currently Miss Dowdy is working on a living room improvement program with some 1,500 women vying for prizes in a contest sponsored by a department store at Athens, Ga.

Burning books is the way of

When the first cold winds begin to blow, after the crops are harvested and the buildings are made snug against winter, when the last reminder of autumn's colorful show is a dull, lifeless brown, comes the time to pause for a moment to remember, to count our blessings.

We have a nation of busy and prosperous people. Just about everybody who wants to work can find some kind of job at pretty fair pay. Our national health is better than that of most peoples. And we have more luxuries than any other nation.

We have worries. Inflation, our war with communism, our shooting war in Korea, our national debt, the fact that our prosperity is based on war production instead of peaceful pursuits. All these things are troublesome.

But, bad as they are, some of them, and difficult as they could be, the good things greatly outweigh the bad.

And of all the good things, it seems to me that we take too lightly and too carelessly one of the best and most important. We're inclined to forget our freedom.

Our nation became great because it was a free nation. No man was told he could not express his beliefs. All men were assured by the basic law of the land their privilege to believe and say what they pleased.

This attitude is bound to lead to conflict, to a sharp difference

We have been so strong in our youth and vigor as a new nation in the world of nations that we dared allow anarchists, seditionists, free thinkers—even non-thinkers!—to do and say what they pleased.

In our schools we taught subjects scientifically, presenting the best protagonists on both or all sides of controversial questions. We tried to teach our young people to think for themselves, and so to be able to weigh the good and the bad in all arguments and make wise decisions for themselves.

You may notice that all these verbs are past tense, indicating that these things are not true in our nation today.

They still are more or less true, but only relatively true. We have had, recently, examples of book-burning. We have super-ultra-patriotic organizations that want censorship, want to prescribe the area of learning available to our youth.

That Call

WAS WORTH A MILLION, SON!

"What a grand surprise! I wasn't expecting you so soon. When you phoned from the station and said you were back, I could hardly believe it. And now you're really here. It's wonderful!"

Good news travels fast... especially by telephone. The usefulness of telephone service can be beyond price in moments of happiness as in moments of anxiety. When such moments come, you are thankful for the quick reassurance a telephone call can bring.

Day in and day out, your telephone proves its value in so many ways.

Today there are more than twice as many other telephones to call as there were 10 years ago. Yet the price of telephone service has gone up less than most prices.

The wedding of Miss Mildred Adamson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Presley M. Adamson, Princeton, Kentucky, and William Joseph Kuhn II, of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Kuhn, was solemnized at half after ten o'clock on Saturday, October 18, 1952, in the First Baptist Church with the Rev. Ralph G.
McConnell, of Murray, officiating at the double ring ceremony.

Attendants were Dr. and Mrs.
John S. Neill, Palmetto, Florida, sister and brother-in-law of the bride. Ushers were Messrs. Roswell Hooks and Ronnie Wilson.

The church altar was decorated with a background of palms, accented with a large basket of white and yellow chrysanthemums with tall candles in candelabras on either side.

Miss Barbara Strong sang, "I Love You Truly," "The Lord's
Prayer" and "At Dawning." Miss Mary Elizabeth Jones, accompanist, rendered appropriate music throughout the nuptial service.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gownned in white Chantilly lace over satin, styled with a close-fitting long sleeve bodice and full ballerina length skirt. Her two tiered veil of silk illusion was attached to a white satin hat with pearls and she wore a single strand of pearls at the neckline. She carried a cluster bouquet of white carnations, centered with a yellow-throated orchid, tied with long yellow ribbon streamers.

Mrs. John S. Neill, the bride's attendant, wore a yellow nylon net dress of ballerina length, posed over yellow taffeta with a not fichu finishing the fitted bodice. Her head band was of nylon net to correspond with her dress and she carried a bouquet of bronze yellow tinted chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Adamson, mother of the bride, chose for her daughter's wedding, a dress of medium blue crepe and a shoulder corsage of red rosebuds.

Immediately after the wedding, a breakfast was given at the home of the bride's parents on Washington street.

The three tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom, was served by Mrs. John S. Neill and Mrs. Arlie Vinson presiding at the punch bowl.

Mrs. W. W. Whitely, Tulley Choice and Warner Adamson assisted with the serving and entertainment.

After the breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Kuhn left for a wedding trip to New York by way of the Smoky Mountains and Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Kuhn chose for her traveling, a suit of light grey with matching accessories. She pinned the orchid from her bouquet at her shoulder.

Mr. and Mrs. Kuhn are now at home at 1901 1/2 Washington street, Springfield, Ohio, and have resumed their work at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base where they have been employed for some time.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. W. R.
Neill, Valley Station; Mrs. Mary
Cobb, Benton; Mr. Jo Dean, Marion; Mr. and Mrs. L. Craighead, Mr. and Mrs. Clark, all of Henderson; Mrs. W. P. Spickard, Louisville; Mr. and Mrs. Early Perry, Hopkinsville; and Mrs. W.
Phelps, Madisonville.

Health Unit Can Help In Obtaining Record Of Birth

By W. L. Cash, M. D.
(Medical Consultant)

Often have you had need of a valuable document, a certificate? Perhaps you had for a copy of yours just after day when you applied for new job. And you didn't think there was time to learn the procedures of acquiring a record of your birth.

If you were born after 1911, all you need to do is see your local health department for application to send to the Kentucky State Department of Health, 620 South Street, Louisville, Kentucky, where all the birth certificates are carefully preserved. This form will ask you to state the place and date of your birth, your parents' names and the attending physician so the Division of Vital Statistics can trace your certificate in the files. With this

Homemakers News

Eddyville Road

Eleven members, three visitors and three new members were present for the Eddyville Road Homemakers on Friday, November 14, at the home of Mrs. Denny Freeman.

First aid hints were given in answer to roll call. Mrs. Denny Cash, club president, presided at the business session and Mrs. L. C. Lismah read the scripture and the thought for the month. Miss Helen Beck, secretary, called the roll, read minutes and gave the treasurer's report.

Mrs. Charles Hubbard, citizenship chairman, conducted a quiz on state officers. The major project was given by Mrs. Alvin Lisanby and Mrs. G. W. Griffin, assisted by Miss Norma Davis, assistant demonstration agent. The subject for discussion was Window Treatment as a background information, and fifty cents' fee, a photostatic copy of your birth certificate will be mailed to you.

Or if your date of birth is prior to 1911, when registration began, the Kentucky State Department of Health, upon request, will send you a delayed certificate form which calls for the affidavits of the nearest living relative and a non-relative, at least ten years older than the applicant. In addition, an item of documentary evidence, such as a family Bible, hospital record or baptismal record, must accompany the certificate. This information, with one dollar fee, will obtain a certified record of your birth.

Birth certificates are used every day for proving age, to obtain passports, prove veteran's claims, joining the armed forces, proving place of birth. For additional information, see your Caldwell County Health Department.

Friendly Nutcracker

for our homes. Good window treatment is based on good art principals, it was said.

Mrs. Freeman served the refreshments. She was assisted by Mrs. "Red" Seeley and little daughter, Ann. New members enrolled were Mrs. R. D. Leech, Mrs. Ollie Cummins and Mrs. Jimmy Jones. Others present were Mrs. J. W. Hollingsworth, Mrs. L. D. Rorer, Mrs. K. P. Hobgood, Mrs. P. E. Oldham and Mrs. Will Beck.

Dawson Road

Mrs. Virginia Bryant was hostess to the Dawson Road Homemakers Tuesday, November 11.

The club was called to order by Mrs. Lemah Hopper. Different activities of the club were discussed and members voted to give a Thanksgiving basket to a needy family.

Mrs. George Stevens gave the thought for the month and also had charge of the recreation.

The lesson on window treatment was given by Mrs. K. T. Vick and Mrs. Dennis Marvel.

Refreshments were served to the fourteen members. They were Mrs. Charles Tandy, Mrs. Glover Lewis, Mrs. Clyde Clayton, Mrs. Walter Rogers, Mrs. R. D. Farmer, Mrs. Lemah Hopper, Mrs. William Hogan, Mrs. George Stevens, Mrs. W. B. Rogers, Mrs. K. T. Vick, Mrs. Dennis Marvel, Mrs. Charles Parker, Mrs. Virginia Bryant and Mrs. Ed Darnell. Four visitors were Mrs. Wylie Childress, Mrs. Marvin Stallins, Mrs. Robert Hutchinson and Miss Norma Davis.

County Agent's Column

By R. A. Mabry

A new group of farm families will participate in the first series of three meetings, December 6, of the Farm and Home Development program.

This program is open to any farm family in the county. The only requirement is that both the farmer and his wife attend together.

The first three meetings are outlined to cover information on all phases of farm and home improvements.

Families who haven't already made application should do so as soon as possible.

BUYS TWO CALVES
Glen Cox, Fredonia 4-H club member, and winner of the 4-H division of this year's District show, already has purchased two calves to show next year.

George Pettit, East Side 4-H member, and winner of first place and blue ribbons, has also gotten two calves on feed for next year. His sister, Betty, who is too young to become a 4-H'er, is helping this year by feeding and caring for one of the calves. Other 4-H members in the baby beef project who have already gotten their calves include Jim Hayes, Jr., Bill Clift and Jim Bob Kevill. Larry Yates, of the Fredonia 4-H club, earned a calf to feed for next year's show by halter breaking and training to lead three young pured bulls for Dr. B. L. Keeney.

SALE AVERAGE HIGH

Announcement was made last week that the $34 per hundred weight average of the 4-H and F. F. A. Fat Cattle Sale, held here in Princeton September 27, was the highest of the state supported sales. This was due, mainly, to the generous support given by the business men and merchants of Princeton and surrounding towns.

Is Your Wife Exceeding the Load Limit?

You'd probably be surprised to see your wife driving a truck down the street loaded with 13 tons of clothes—wouldn't you?

That's the weight of the clothes the average housewife lifts every year doing the laundry. From washer to wringer, from tub to tub, to basket, to clothesline—it adds up to about 13 back-breaking tons a year.

And it's all so unnecessary. Automatic electric laundry equipment—washer, dryer and ironer—do away with lifting and handling of hot, steamy, heavy clothes. It's just a half-step from the automatic washer to the automatic dryer. No more lugging heavy baskets upstairs and downstairs—indoors and outdoors—no more contending with the weather.

Let automatic laundry equipment eliminate the laundry "load" in your home.

Ask your dealer for a demonstration.

MERGER PROGRAM, FAILED AGAIN

In a meeting last Tuesday, November 24th, it was unanimously voted by the Princeton Independent Board of Education that we should fully inform the Public that we have worked diligently for a Merger Program of the Princeton Independent School District and the Caldwell County School District.

In October, 1950, we had a joint meeting with the County Board of Education. Attending this meeting were Mr. Chilton and Mr. Young from the State Department of Education. At this meeting the Merger Program was discussed in detail. On numerous occasions following this meeting there have been joint sessions of the two Boards of Education in an effort to work out a satisfactory merger agreement.

On each occasion the Merger Program has failed because there could be no agreement by the two Boards of Education on who would be the Superintendent of the Consolidated System. At a joint meeting in May of this year Mr. Ruel Cairnes, Superintendent of the Independent School District, offered his resignation so the two Boards of Education could select a Superintendent who was not involved in the disagreement. Mr. Clifton Clift, Superintendent of the Caldwell County Board would not resign, as a result, the two Boards of Education could not select a new Superintendent. Consequently, the Princeton Board would not accept Mr. Cairnes resignation.

On two later occasions with representatives from the State Department of Education, effort has been made to work out some satisfactory agreement. On each occasion the plan failed because the County Board was insistent on Mr. Clift being Superintendent, and the Princeton Board would not agree. Since a satisfactory Merger Program could not be agreed upon, the Princeton Independent Board of Education must take some definite action in planning an expansion program for the immediate future. Detailed plans of this program will be announced.

Whooping Crane Secret Minot, N. D. — A wounded whooping crane, making a stopover on its flight by Wildlife Service airplane to the preserve at Aransas, Tex., has helped give conservation experts an idea of what is making the whoopers vanish. It died during the trip.

This bird was captured after being wounded in Saskatchewan.
Another wounded bird, found in Kansas this year, also died. Two disabled cranes at New Orleans were crippled by gunfire in times past.

The count on the whooper at its winter playground in Texas totaled only 25 last year, down five from the previous year. Not that many have shown up thus far this fall but others probably will arrive.

A spokesman for the National Audubon Society, at least, feels that trigger happy hunters are responsible in considerable part for the decrease in numbers of the cranes.

Tallest of American birds, they once were abundant on the great plains.

"CHARITY" ON CANVAS

A widow and her three hungry children huddling for-lornly against the marble column of a church! That's the way one artist portrayed "Charity."

How shall we interpret this tragic scene? Is it symbolic of the downtrodden's faith in the generosity of Christians everywhere? Or is it a bitter study of men's failure to express their religion in acts of love.

The ragged children, asleep after a long and fruitless wait, seem to imply the latter!

Nevertheless, this painting is a bold challenge to Christian stewardship. For the blessed work of the Church, in charity and in the spread of its Gospel, is either limited or expanded by our own outreach of love.

Next Sunday will be Stewardship Sunday in many churches. The physical and spiritual welfare of millions will be at stake when you set your personal goal in weekly giving to the Church.

Farmer Tries New Method To Reseed Grass Waterways

By Oliver C. Allcock
(Soil Conservation Service)
W. C. Sparks, whose farm is on the Princeton-Eddyville road, tried a new method of reseeding grass waterways this fall. He soaked the grass seed and had them ready to germinate at the time they were seeded.
"When I sowed the soaked seed," said Mr. Sparks, "they did not come up for several days because it was so dry. I thought my work had been lost. But when the first rain came, I was glad surprised to see the seed begin sprouting and growing almost immediately," he continued.
Soaking seed takes a little more time and work, but it often helps in getting a quicker growth of grass. This quick growth is needed to protect the waterways.
The pretty green grass waterways can be seen from the road, while driving by Mr. Sparks' farm.

EXPECTS INCREASED YIELD
John Henry Kemp, whose 108-acre farm is located in the Hall community, will expect increased yields in one of his bottom fields from now on. The increase will result from the establishment of a system of open ditch drainage in the field this week.
"When the field is plowed, I plan to throw the soil away from the ditches and manage the land so as to maintain and improve its drainage," Mr. Kemp told the SCS technician. "Water has stood on the land long enough to reduce the yields for many years. But we now have it so the water will move off before the crops are damaged," he continued.
Gayle Pettit and Gresham Pettit of the Princeton community have also improved the drainage in one of their fields this week.
"We will now be able to grow improved pasture on land that has been too wet," Gayle said. "The ditching should have been done years ago. It would have made possible more returns from the wet area each year," he stated.

ENDS CONSERVATION WORK
Roy Francis, Jr., who has been assisting the local soil conservation technician in carrying out the permanent type practices of the Agricultural Conservation Program, has completed his work with the Soil Conservation Service for 1952.
The Department of Agriculture Appropriation Act, 1952, Public Law 135, "provided that funds not to exceed 5 per centum of the allocation for the agricultural conservation program for any county may, on the recommendation of such county committee and approval of the state committee, be withheld and allotted to the Soil Conservation Service for services of its technicians in the formulating and carrying out the agricultural conservation program in the participating counties."
The amount of $800 recommended by the County PMA Committee was allotted for this purpose in Caldwell county this year.
The services of Mr. Francis have been a big help in assisting farmers with their conservation work.

Automatic Paint Mixer Machine Is Developed

New York (AP) — A new push button device mixes paints to the precise color of a sample in less than 90 seconds. The mechanism, known as the automatic color carousel, mixes paint to match a selected color chip, putting into a container just the right amount of various colors to match the original.
The machine takes about half the space of an office desk. It stores specially formulated liquid colors in containers housed in a varicolored revolving drum atop its counter-high base and measures them with laboratory accuracy into cans of base paints, enamels or stains.
Through selective mechanical and electronic controls, code numbers on the color chips are transferred by dial settings into the matching color in flat, semi-gloss, gloss or deep-tone wall paint, house paint, floor enamel, decorative enamel or pigmented stain. The device was developed by Standard-Toch Chemicals Inc.
